

Now There Is a Further Separation Coming

I'm hearing the word "separation." Yes, even a further separation is coming now, says the Lord. For a great while, there has been a struggle in those who would ride the fence between the world and My Kingdom. My grace has born long and still bears long with them. But understand now, for those who have made their choice and no longer straddle the fence but have chosen Me, now there is a further separation for you, My remnant. For now I am drawing you into a separation from the ways of man unto the ways of God, from the ways of religion to the ways of life, from the ways of this world to the ways of the Kingdom. And for those of you who would walk in these paths, there is no substitute for time spent with Me, says the Lord.

If you would have My armor, you must come into My Presence where I may give it to you Myself. If you would have My wisdom, come, come, says the Lord. Spend time with Me in My rooms of fellowship, and I will teach you wisdom not known since the foundation of the world, but always known to Me. By My Spirit, line upon line, I will re-lay the foundation of the Apostles so that all that you have asked Me for and all that you have sought Me for, your eyes will see, shortly, shortly, says the Lord.

So know now: There is a separation of the remnant. For some things will be hard for you to let go of, things you have been taught from your youth, says the Lord. But just look, I ask you, says the Lord, those who were your teachers, do they walk in what you have asked Me for? So know and understand that there will be things you will have to cast down: strongholds of long standing, things hard and difficult because of tradition and because of familiarity. But be open unto Me, says the Lord. Trust Me. Trust My Spirit. Yield to Me and I will verify, and I will verify from My Word so that you will know your feet do not walk on moving sand but on the solid rock of My Word, says the Lord.

I Grant You Greater Clarity of Vision

Know this night, says the Lord, that I see your hearts. I see your hearts, says the Lord. I look upon each one. I know everything about you, and I hear your heart cries. Know this night: I am granting a gift to all those who have bowed in heart. Here is My gift to you, says the Lord: From this night forward, I grant you greater clarity of vision.

You are going to sense, not just see: I will draw your heart into My call for your life. The path will not be as wavering as it has seemed in the past, for your heart will not let you depart from My call. I grant you this night greater clarity of vision. Individually and collectively, I grant it this night.

My counsel to you, says the Lord, for this is even a furthering, a progression of the spirit of prayer that I released earlier. Resist Me not when My Spirit says, Come. Resist Me not, says the Lord. Many of you have yielded when I have said, Come. Some have partially yielded. Some have almost resisted, but I grant you clarity, greater clarity of vision.

Part of you receiving that: When you hear My Spirit say, "Come. Come away and be separate," the Lord desires to visit with you—resist My Spirit not.

Resist not My Spirit. There are times, there are seasons, there are reasons why My Spirit calls you when He does. Resist Him not, says the Lord. Resist Him not.
